Final Adjournment of the Legislature.

ITS HISTORY HAS BEEN MADE.

Session Lasting Nearly Five Months More or Less Eventful-A Month Longer Than Necessary-A Number of Amendments to the Revised Statutes-Several Important Bills Passed-A Review of the Work Done.

COLUMBUS, O., May 22. The Seventy-first general assembly passed into history at high noon Monday, after a more or less eventful life of nearly five months. It could just as well have adjourned a month ago if the senate had been as favorably disposed toward Joseph Hovey left Thursday last ate had been as favorably disposed toward for an extended trip to Washington the biennial session movement as was D. C., and will visit Fostoria and the house. If that question had been settled the first week in the session as it ought, and if the senators on the finance committee had done their work as promptly as did the house committee, an adjournment could have been safely effected as early as April 21, or at latest May I. But be that as it may, an adjournment for two years on May 21 is not a very bad record, all things considered. This legislature found the state's finances over-appropriated to the extent of nearly half a million, and had the sand to issue bonds enough to straighten up that discrepancy. It had to pay nearly $300,000 of expenses of the last fiscal year in the shape of deficiencies, which amount had to come of this year's revthat, it is expected, will bring in enough er and wife, of Bolivar Ohio.

Mrs. Nancy Stout is visiting her daughter Mrs. Nellie Brubaker, in probably cause a reduction in the state tax levy during the life of the next general assembly.

The chief thing that this legislature is to be criticized for is the indiscriminate manner in which the revised statutes have been Amended, Supplemented and Repealed, The statute book has been almost literally torn to pieces; there is not much left but the covers. Sections have been amended for the most trivial reasons; they have been supplemented until the supplemental letters are nearly down to the letter Z; many have been absolutely repealed. It takes two pages of typetutes that have been thus affected, and the secretary of state's office has been issuing bulletins for the information of the members and the public on the changes that were going on daily. For instance, the section of the statutes governing the compensation of county commissioners has been an especial target for supplemental sections. All the large counties of the state have a section touching this subject, and now many of the smaller ones are coming in and each gets a sec-

This legislature has been more conservative in the matter of authorizing land for a new city hall, and not one collar of this can be issued until outstanding bonds are redeemed and paid off, because of a law enacted this winter limiting the amount of bonds to 5 per cent of the total appraised value of taxable property. Another commendable feature of the great majority of the bills passed is the submission to a vote of the people that has been uniformly insisted upon. Probably nine-tenths of all these bonding bills have had this provision inserted either by the author of the bills themselves or by the committees that have reported them. And even the million dollars for Cleveland was Submitted to a Vote of the People before the bill was passed. Many of these bonding bills were caused by the hard times and were passed to give employment and relief to the unemployed in several of the larger cities and towns of the state. Altogether the bond record of the Seventy-first general assembly has been better than any of its predecessors for many years, or better than any one session of its predecessors for many

Reynolds for a judicial bill, only to find after he had rejudicial bill, only to find after he had reported it to the house and obtained a special order for it, that it could not pass the senate, so he gave up in despair and never pressed his measure farther. Mr. Ely of Fulton spent all of his spare moments getting up a bill to reduce the compensation of county officials all overhouse, but it fell down in the senate last Friday night through the injudicious act of one of its warm supporters. Mr. Griffin put much time and study upon a bill to tax railroads on a different basis Our band boys are now doing considerable work and making quite rapid progress in the music line.

One of the best laws enneted by the outgoing legislature was one to provide for county depositories. Heretofore the county treasurers have derived a large income from the loaning of public funds to banks and others, but hereafter all such money is to be loaned to banks of deposit and the interest to come from the loans is to be credited to the general revenue fund of the respective counties. been no small sums. Several cities and villages have the same sort of laws, among them Cleveland, which receives about $60,000 a year from its depository; this sum goes a long way toward the expense of the municipal government.

This new county depository law had a narrow escape from being lost in the last rush. It only passed the house a week before a ljournment and passed the senate two days before the end.

The abandondment of the Hocking Valley canal to a railroad company or-ganized on paper is the only bill that has caused any 'ery violent ruction. The scenes that were enacted when this bill passed through the house have already been described by the newspa-pers of the state. Whother the many charges that have been made against both sides are true or not remains to be seen, but those who opposed the bill are satisfied that if it should turn out to be a good thing no one will care who voted either way, while on the other hand if it should turn to be a bad thing they will have their nay vote to fall back on. If the new company shall build the road on the old Hocking canal, which has long been virtually abandoned, it will have to put $50,000 and $10,000 a year, which will be more than the state has ever before realized out of any other canal trades or leases. Years ago when the state leased all of the canals of the state it only received $20,-000 a year, which is but twice as much as is to be received yearly from 40 miles of this already abandoned canal, to say nothing or the $50,000 that is to be planked down at the outset. If the canal to be a supplied to the canal to be a supplied to the canal to be a supplied to the canal to the canal to be a supplied to the canal to the cana is to be abandoned the amount to be re ceived from it is certainly large enough and in al. probability as large as could be obtained in any event. It may not be uninteresting to know that the grand duplicate of the state amounts to $1,752,990,980; this is divided as follows: Real estate in cities and towns, $597.848,119; real estate made up of farm lands, etc., $588,575,550; chattels, $568,567,253. $568,567,253; the rate of taxation for general revenue purposes is 1.4 mills; for school purposes, I mill; for the sinking fund .8 of a mill, and for the Ohio state university fund, .05; making a total of 2.75 mills. The appraisement of prop-erty in 1890 cut down the grand duplicate so that the loss in income to the state since that year has been about $300,000. This was one of the causes for the issuance of the certificates of

A bill was enacted last week repealing

Machinery has become so indispensable in road building and repairdispensable in road building and repair-ing that the work that is put in by men chosen indiscriminately and little used to the kind of work required does not to the kind of work required does not bring about the desired results. An-other reason for the change lies in the fact that under the old law lazy and in-different men are allowed as much compensation for their work as are con-scientious and faithful workers. Under the new order of things those who do good work will be employed and they will get their money paid in the shape of a road tax back again, while the lazy and shiftless fellows will have to pay their tax and will not be able to get any of it back again. In addition to this, farmers will not be allowed to make the young fellows work on the road, simply to put in their time, while in fact

They Louf Most of the Time. Monday the house and senate closed up at high noon. A beautiful gold watch was given to the speaker, other appro-priate presents were given, the usual resolutions and speeches were made and the Seventy-first general assembly was no more. The grand rush to get bills enrolled and signed before the hands of the clock pointed toward the tops of the clocks at the same time kept every one busy all the forenoon.

A good story is told of several members who went to Put-in-Bay fishing a week ago and it is too good to allow to die. When Representative Shuler of Montgomery county went into the Beebe House to get his dinner, Representative McBride of Richland county, who was sitting at a table nearby with several other members, called a waiter to him and gave the said waiter a half dollar and told him not to give Dr. Shuler any-thing to eat for half an hour. So the doctor sat in his seat with nothing to eat but a glass of water, while the other tebleful enjoyed his discomfiture hugely. After they were all gone the doctor's dinner was brought to him and a hint was given to him as to the cause of the trouble. He said not a word, but as the old stories go, he bided his time. The next day Dr. Shuler was the first into dinner, and Mr. McBride came in with many of the same friends that were with him the day before. Dr. Shuler
